

Jack Atnip III

"There is a difference between merely practicing law and being a legal advocate for your client's interests. I begin every legal matter with the question: What does my client really want to achieve? And the value I add as their lawyer is in keeping my client's goals in center focus as I passionately advocate for the best results as efficiently as possible, and strive to exceed their expectations at every opportunity."

Jack's legal practice is focused in the areas of banking, commercial and agricultural finance, commercial collections, and business litigation. He has been providing litigation, transactional and legal consulting services and advice to financial institutions, businesses and individuals since 1999. Jack is licensed in Minnesota and California state and federal courts, and has also litigated cases in North Dakota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Illinois, New York, Oregon, Nevada, Texas, and internationally.

Regarding the financial services industry, Jack provides a full spectrum of legal services related to commercial and agricultural lending, including drafting all manner of loan documents and assisting with every detail of the finance transaction. He also assists his clients with loan workouts of every dimension. Jack has almost two decades of experience handling every facet of the loan recovery and commercial collections process, including litigation and obtaining judgments, commencing receivership proceedings and representing receivers, as well as commercial mortgage and UCC security interest foreclosure proceedings. He competently and efficiently handles all manner of post-judgment collections actions, from traditional debt and judgment collections to successfully pursuing high stakes and highly complex multi-state and multi-million dollar fraudulent transfer actions. Jack also protects and asserts creditors' rights in bankruptcy, including bringing adversary proceedings and getting bankruptcies terminated without discharge due to fraud. He has substantial trial and appellate experience with a very high success rate.

On the commercial and business side, Jack consults and advises on corporate formality compliance and maintenance, and serves as outside general counsel. He also has been successfully litigating all manner of commercial disputes and shareholder disputes and buy-outs since 1999, including complex partnership fraud and misappropriation actions.

Outside of the office, Jack enjoys spending time with family and friends, golfing, fishing, mountain biking and skiing.
