

Rachel M. Dahl

Rachel M. Dahl's practice includes comprehensive estate planning, probate and trust administration, elder law, business formation and succession planning, and real estate.

Rachel works with families to design estate plans that meet their individual needs and goals, whether simple or sophisticated. She routinely drafts wills and trusts utilizing disclaimer and credit shelter planning provisions, and provides estate tax analysis. In addition to drafting revocable estate plans, she also drafts irrevocable plans such as life insurance trusts and charitable trusts.

Rachel is a graduate of Hamline University School of Law in Saint Paul, Minnesota. While in law school, she served as an associate for the Hamline Journal of Public Law and Policy, served as a law clerk for two Ramsey County District Court judges, and as a volunteer for the Minnesota Wills for Heroes program. Rachel obtained her bachelor's degree from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where she double majored in Biology and English. She is licensed to practice law in both Minnesota and Iowa.
